You care about impact. I get it.

My PhD is in creative writing. That means I know how language makes people feel. And more importantly, how it makes them act.

That's what this is about. The need for somebody who cares as much as you do. Who has the chops to put the right word in the right place. Nouns that carry. Verbs that whistle. Sharper language, greater impact.

I'm the doc for that.

My clients are kind of a big deal. So are you.

Over the past decade, I've worked with local store owners, international firms, and government.

I've edited outward-facing copy for international consortiums. Written lease negotiations for contractors. Edited monographs. Penned interviews for Pulitzer Prize winners. I've contributed to daily briefings for the White House. All my clients have one thing in common. They don't settle for less.

There's a reason these companies trust me. And they keep coming back.

But enough about us.
Let's look at the work.

GOODWORK

App launch. Story.

We were told we could be anything when we grew up, but no one told us how. Finding good work as clinicians, in particular, is tough.

That's why we created Goodwork, an app designed to simplify the process of connecting clinicians and employers.

Our goal is to provide a user-friendly platform that eliminates the hassle of job searching, allowing clinicians to focus on delivering exceptional care while working with supportive employers.

Hassle-free. That's our promise.

GOODWORK

App launch.
Mission.

Goodwork is all about connecting travel nurses and healthcare workers effortlessly. Our app simplifies the recruitment process, allowing you to find your ideal match in a snap.

We believe in building lasting relationships, and we're committed to creating a platform that's transparent, supportive, and easy to use.

Our mission is to empower travel nurses to find rewarding work, and to help employers find the best talent for their needs.

We can't wait to see what you find.

GOODWORK

App launch.
Promotional perks.

Goodwork offers more than just an efficient solution. We even reward you for using the app.

That's why, for clinicians' first year using Goodwork, we'll add an extra 5% to the weekly advertised pay. It's our way of saying thanks.

And recruiters? We want you to have peace of mind when hiring workers. That's why you'll only pay us when the job is done. No hassles, no worries.

Say goodbye to the headaches of job hunting and say hello to Goodwork.

Southeast Review

Rebranding. About.

Southeast Review, established in 1979 as Sundog, is a national literary magazine edited and managed by Florida State graduate students.

Our mission is to present emerging writers on the same stage as well-established ones. We publish literary fiction, creative nonfiction, poetry, book reviews, interviews, and art in our biannual print issues and online.

With sixty staff members from around the world, we publish work that is representative of our diverse interests and aesthetics. And we celebrate the eclectic mix this produces.
